

Maintenance June 07, 2013

Our webhost is updating some of our hosting software. The perks will be more efficient service (hopefully a bit of speed boost) and security. The downside is that I have to tweak a few areas of code to make our site work.

It -should- be a quick fix as our sister site, Notebrag.com is already using the newer hosting software with my original code. While I'm working, the site may be partially available.

UPDATE: The migration to the new software went smoother than expected. It looks like everything is working. I've tested a few things and I'll do a few more tests but it should be safe to contribute to the database with coins, photos and prices.
